Oberweis Asset Management, Inc. Introduces New Small-Cap Value Fund

LISLE, IL, Oct 2, 2017— Oberweis Asset Management (OAM) and The Oberweis Funds are pleased to announce the launch of the Oberweis Small Cap Value Fund (ticker: OBVLX). For institutional investors, OAM will offer a corresponding separately managed account strategy. This new fund is designed to profit from academically-observed market anomalies among small-cap value stocks. The Oberweis Small-Cap Value Fund seeks to invest in smaller value-oriented equities experiencing positive management signals -- such as insider buying and corporate share repurchases -- which often portend stock price appreciation. This strategy expands Oberweis' suite of behavioral finance focused small-cap growth investment strategies to include small-cap value, an asset class with similar academically-documented market inefficiencies. Small-cap value specialists David Wetherell, CFA and Umesh Nathani, CFA have joined Oberweis to manage the strategy. Dr. David Ikenberry, an academic pioneer in behavioral finance, will serve as Strategic Advisor to the Fund. The Oberweis Small-Cap Value Fund is a no-load institutional mutual fund available through fee-based investment advisors or to individual investors subject to the fund's minimum investment.

Jim Oberweis, OAM's President and Chief Investment Officer, said, "As a specialized small-cap investor, we are excited to expand our suite of offerings to include a small-cap value strategy using an investment process based on behavioral finance, adapted for the unique attributes of the small-cap value asset class. This new fund furthers our vision of becoming the premier investment firm for small-cap behavioral finance investing – domestically and internationally, for both growth and value equities."

"At Oberweis, we will continue to apply our disciplined and time-tested small-cap value investment process based on behavioral finance anomalies," said David Wetherell, strategy portfolio manager. "As academic research from thought leaders such as Dr. David Ikenberry document, there continue to be opportunities in inefficient asset classes such as small-cap value and we'll remain focused on building real-life portfolios designed to capture alpha in that market segment. Our move to Oberweis will deepen their team of world-class, global small-cap specialists."

About Oberweis Asset Management, Inc.

Oberweis Asset Management, Inc. is an independent investment management firm that invests in small- and mid-cap companies around the globe. We specialize in uncovering mispriced equities, combining behavioral finance with fundamental bottom-up research. Serving institutional investors and our own proprietary family of mutual funds for over 25 years, we focus exclusively on identifying opportunities where change results in temporary misunderstanding of a company's true value, providing the potential for superior investment results over the long term.
